

POETRY.

FORMER TIMES.—By L. E. L.
We meet not in the valley
Where we used to meet;
Where the little brook was flowing,
And the birds were singing sweet.

Our treasures were the lilies
That open in the spring,
Or the purple feathers falling
From off the peacock's wing.

We were young, and we were happy,
The present was our own,
The past was not remembered,
The future was unknown.

The music of the river,
The dear blue sky above,
Filled the bright heart within us
With happiness and love.

We had a thousand fancies,
And we had not a care—
Life's hours were stealing round us,
While dreaming what they were.

We read old tales of fairies
And half-believed them true,
The fortune of our future
Had, at least, enough to do.

Youth's clear and far horizon
Affords such ample scope,
And we too, had our fairy,
The early fairy—Hope.

We had some thought of changes
When'er that future came;
But it was still, in changing,
To find our hearts the same.

I linger o'er those moments
With a true and fond regret—
As we watch the last faint colours
Of a sun that long has set.

No friendships are unselfish
As those which first we knew;
So linked by pleasant memories—
So generous and so true.

The best of those affections
We form in after hours,
Are the faint and chilling perfume
Of the after-growth of flowers.

We have fallen from each other,
Have changed and disagreed;
Our lips are closed and careless,
Of love we have no need.

The world has entered in us,
We doubt where once we dreamed;
We have learnt the bitter lesson,
There is nothing what it seemed.

Oh, lone and silent valley,
Thy loveliness is o'er;
For youth, hope, and affection,
Return to thee no more.

SAYINGS OF CHARLES LAMB.

We have been favoured by an accomplished writer, one of the most intimate and honoured friends of Mr Lamb, with the following "quips and quillots." They are characteristic of his utterance. Those who know how Charles Lamb hesitated his joke, and made feints as it were, in order to dart it forth the next minute with tenfold effect, will best recognize the points, and enjoy the spirit of them. Next to knowing what Lamb said, it was always desirable to know how he said it.—London Journal.

Coleridge was one evening running before the wind. He had talked about everything, from Moses downwards. At last he came to his own doings at Shrewsbury, and was swinging on, nineteen knots to the hour. "At this place, at Shrewsbury, (which is not only remarkable for its celebrated cakes, and for having been the point of rendezvous for Falstaff's regiment of foot; but also, if I may presume to speak of it, for the first development of the imaginative faculty in myself, by which faculty I would be understood to mean, &c. &c.)"—at Shrewsbury, Charles Lamb, that you have heard me preach?—perused he, turning round to his fatigued friend, who rapidly retorted—"I—I—never heard you do anything else."

"Have you seen"—said the excellent article in the Review?—asked some one of Lamb. "Yes," said he, "I saw something of it." Did you observe what a complete theory he has built up?—was the second inquiry. "I don't understand these things," returned Lamb, evading the question. "But did you see any thing defective?" persisted the other; "it seems to me to be a perfect fabric. What is there wanting?" "I thought," answered L., at last, "that it—it—w—wanted—the Attic."

Sombody was telling of a merry party then in prospect. "There will be—," (Lamb smiled) and—, (another smile, but sickly,) and—, ("You might have done better," said L.) and D. D.—, ("Ugh!" shuddered Lamb, at this last name, with a face expressive of nausea, "He! he! throw a—damp upon a—a funeral!")

L. and his sister were one evening supping at Mrs M.—'s. L. (with a little unwelcome assistance from another person) had made his way to the bottom of the second bottle of porter. "You really shall not have any more, Charles," said his sister. "Pray Mrs M.—, don't give him any more." "You hear what your sister says, Mr Lamb?" observed Mrs M.—, pouring out the remains of the porter (which were thick) into his glass. "She is a person of mean capacity," said he, "I never listen to her. Try the next bottle, Madame, for this is thick; and—Hospitality should run fine to the last."

"How obstinate M. B. is," observed a visitor. "He's an excellent fellow," said L., avoiding the point. "I like M.—." "But he's so obstinate," reiterated the speaker. "Well," replied L., "I like a good solid obstinacy. Something may come of it. Besides,—there's something to quarrel with. One's blows don't tell upon a fellow who goes whisking about like a ball of worsted, and won't stand up for his own opinion. M.'s a freeholder, and insists upon having his vote."

"What a fine style X. has!" said a poetaster. "Excellent," echoed another person; "don't you think so, Mr L.?" "I'm no judge of styles," was the answer; "I only know what pleases myself."—"But surely, Mr L. you must think it fine. For my part, the word fine doesn't half express what I think of it. It doesn't at all come up to my ideas."—"Perhaps," observed L., "the word su—su—superior will do better."

We will venture to add to what our friend has communicated, a stage-coach saying of Lamb's. He was coming to town in the Enfield stage, to see the rehearsal of Mr Knowles's new play of The Wife. It might be that he was mentally composing the epilogue, as he sat snug and silent in a corner of the vehicle. He was at all events studious; but he unluckily had an exceedingly talkative old gentleman for his fellow-passenger. Lamb was questioned and cross-questioned upon a hundred points—especially relating to the weather, the agricultural interests, and the crops. Lamb knew nothing about the crops. At last—"What do you think of the turnips, sir?" inquired his passenger. Lamb turned upon him an eye "full of bonfire and glee."—"Why, Sir, that depends a good deal on the soil—legs of mutton!" The old gentleman put no further questions.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

STATE LAW.

AN ACT to continue in force "An Act concerning Warren Bridge."

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That "an Act concerning Warren Bridge," passed March twenty eighth in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, be and the same shall hereby remain in full force and effect until the first Wednesday of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five. Provided, however, that the tolls already collected, and such as may hereafter be collected, shall be exclusively appropriated to the repairs and maintenance of said bridge, and not otherwise.

Section 2. Be it further enacted, That if the City of Boston and the Town of Charlestown shall, on or before the expiration of this act, give a bond to the Treasurer of the Commonwealth, to be approved by the Governor and Council, and with the condition that the obligors therein, shall and will forever perform all the duties imposed upon the Warren Bridge Corporation, by the third section of the act establishing the same, and shall also indemnify and save harmless the Commonwealth, and the said Warren Bridge Corporation, from all damages, expenses and costs, already arisen, or to arise from the suit now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, between the proprietors of the Charles River Bridge, and John Skinner and others, and the said Warren Bridge Corporation, and shall also pay the proprietors of Charles River Bridge such sum in damages as may in any suit be recovered by them, for or on account of the building, using or continuing the said Warren Bridge, or making the same free of toll, then this act shall cease, the said Warren Bridge shall become a public highway, and the money in the treasury received from the tolls of said Bridge, shall be paid to the said obligors:—

Provided, however, that if the condition of the bond mentioned in this section shall be broken, or if any of the obligors, the same proceedings shall be had therein, and in the same manner as are provided by law in the case of the forfeiture of the official bonds of sheriffs; and provided further, that if the present Directors of said Warren Bridge, shall not on the day next after the last day of the session of this General Court, give a bond to the Treasurer of this Commonwealth, conditioned to do and perform the same services and duties as are required in and by the provision in the sixth section of the act to which this is in addition, until the bond provided for in this act shall be given, then the said bridge and fourth section, and so much of the first section of the act to which this is in addition as relates to the collection of toll, shall be in full force.

Section 3. Be it further enacted, That the city of Boston and the town of Charlestown may give the bond mentioned in the second section, and may by a tax, assessment, or otherwise, raise money to defray the expense of performing the condition thereof.

Approved by the Lieut. Governor, November 4, 1835.

BAKING ESTABLISHMENT.—No 122 Court st.

The subscriber (late of the firm of WINSHIP & HEWES) respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has taken the above establishment, formerly occupied by Mrs. B. Burdum, where he intends carrying on the BAKING business in all its various branches.

The undersigned would take this opportunity to return thanks to his old patrons for their liberal favours, and to express his regret, that any unwelcome circumstances should have prevented for a time his supplying them with bread manufactured under his own supervision. He would assure them, however, that he is now prepared to answer all their calls, and to furnish them with bread of every kind, of the very first order. His French Rolls, in particular, which have given so much satisfaction heretofore, will be found to possess their usual excellent qualities—rich, nutritive, healthful, sweet—and they who may discover the absence of these qualities, where they have found them very recently, may find them now by calling on above, as is Family Bread, may say with confidence, will give no less satisfaction than formerly, and he will spare no pains to make both the Rolls and Family Bread of uniform excellence.

A supply of every variety of Cake will be kept constantly on hand; and a share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

N. B. Dinner and Supper Rolls at short notice, as above

TO THE PUBLIC.—THOMSONIAN INFIRMARY.

At No. 23 Harvard street. (Harvard street leads from Front street, and is opposite No. 499 Washington street Boston.)

The Proprietor of this Infirmary would respectfully announce to his friends and the community at large, that he has succeeded Mr Andrew Watkins in the foregoing and well known popular establishment. And he would now make his grateful acknowledgments for the patronage he has already received during the short time he has been there, and would solicit the continuance of the same from the numerous frequenters of this institution.

Long experience in the theory and practice of the Botanic System of Medicine has rendered him perfectly familiar with the administration of these remedies; and the decided success he has met with in many cases will enable him to assert, that they are both safe and powerful in their operation on the human frame, and will, beyond all dispute, expel all maladies which flesh is heir to, from the human system, (as millions of the people of the United States can testify,) provided application be made in season. The Infirmary will be conducted on pure Thomsonian principles, and under the patronage and direction of Dr Samuel Thomson, the venerable founder of the system, who, when in the city, makes this establishment his home.

Dr James Howarth, of the firm of James Howarth & Co., who is one of the general agents of Dr Thomson for this part of the country, also resides at the Infirmary, and will render his aid and assistance when necessary in cases of difficulty. The experience this gentleman has had in administering Thomsonian Medicine to the sick has rendered him perfectly conversant with the Botanic System of Practice. It is situated in a detached and airy building, in a quiet location, being well known in Andover and Boston and many other places in New-England. The public are already acquainted with them. It may be added, however, that he is a thorough Thomsonian, and a perfect disciplinarian both in his theory and practice.

The above establishment has, since it has been relinquished by the former occupant, been partially refitted, and will now afford every convenience for the comfort of invalids. It is pleasantly and elegantly situated in a central and retired part of the city; and is free from the noise and bustle which is always attendant on a large establishment. Faithful and experienced nurses will likewise afford their untiring attendance on the sick. Pure Thomsonian medicine, together with Family Rights, Robinson's Lecture, and all other books relating to the system, constantly for sale at the Infirmary on moderate terms.

And Agent for Doct. Samuel Thomson.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1835.

What ought a Newspaper to be?—First of all, the newspaper must be a vehicle of the news; for this, it cannot be denied, is the very soul and spirit of its columns, without which it would not differ from any old leaf of a printed volume that might be picked up in the street. It must be a kind of pedlar of all wares, both staple and fancy articles, distributing around the country an extensive assortment of bon-mots, conundrums, incidents, anecdotes, essays, criticisms, tales, ditties, signs and wonders, earthquakes, battles, fires, murders and thunderstorms. Every taste and disposition must be gratified. The young girls and old maids, must be soothed—the old bachelors must be joked—great men must be puffed, and obscure men must be ridiculed—children must be served with anecdotes, and old women must be preached to—bigots and superstitious people must be ridiculed, and infidels must be cursed—poets must be flattered and orators must be extolled. The young lad, who is just making his debut in the character of a lover, and who cannot find any thing to write in his young mistress's album, must need only to look into the poetical corner of the newspaper, to cast his eye upon some tender verses, written and published for his very purpose. The young Miss, who has just arrived in her teens, who is languishing with unaccountable feelings, which she cannot describe, and is longing for some tender description of her sentiments, must need only to refer to the same identical column of the muses, to find an abundance of sympathy in the sweet measured language of Hemans, Gould, or Sigourney. The dandy who feels elate in his fashionable garments, but droops with self-contempt as soon as he finds himself exceeded in elegance or fashion, must be served with a fine glitter of advertisements of drapers, tailors and hairdressers. These are the only poetry for which he has any taste—and the only philosophy for which he feels any interest. The professed story-teller, who cannot draw constantly upon his own original resources, without exhaustion, must be gratified with a full report of all late ludicrous incidents—bulls and blunders, comical tales and newly coined anecdotes, to preserve him from sinking into silence and insignificance. There must be likewise a dish of scandal served up daily, for the entertainment of the gossiping class of the community—an account of all marriages—branches of promise—elopements—seductions—divorces and all kinds of evil doings as well as misfortunes. To this class of people the reports of all kinds of scandal are the very spirit of the press; all that enlivens the columns of a newspaper. There is a kind of literary class of the community, who will not be satisfied without a few morsels of criticism and fine writing. They must be plied with extracts from the Magazines and Reviews, and occasionally served with an original essay, criticism or lucubration. Such tit-bits are quite necessary for the entertainment of female readers, (for those who are truly feminine in their characters never trouble themselves with politics.) But above all, there must be a column of political news, to supply the wants of the sovereign people, who are ever on the watch, like true and faithful sentinels, to guide and guard their liberties—and who must not be dismissed without a few remarks upon certain theoretical and practical points of legislation and political economy. There must be a good price current and shipping list for the merchant. The paper must contain nostrums for the invalid, and receipts for the housewife—a ditty for love-sick girls, and a bit of a sermon for pious old women—a column of "Geoponics" for the agriculturalists, and an essay on heads for the phrenologists. In fine, as every taste is to be served, it is absolutely necessary that the articles should be short, that every reader may find something that will suit his own taste and wants. For this reason we will say no more.

The Harpers have re-published the second volume of their uniform edition of Bulwer's works, embracing the "Disowned." Bulwer is unquestionably one of the greatest and most remarkable men of the age—as a Novelist he has no equal, and as a statesman, may be ranked among the most enlightened and practical of his countrymen. His works will hereafter form a very important portion of English literature and politics, and their possession be deemed indispensable to a knowledge of the history of the present era.

The same publishers have also issued from their press, Goodwin's "History of the Necromancers," a work full of instruction and amusement.

The Atlas winces and groans at the exposition of its gross and abusive falsehoods like a dying convict upon the wheel. The long and universal shouts of approbation which were heard in FANEUIL HALL when Mr Everett described "the polluted spirits who wallow in the filth of that Journal," was a plain expression of public sentiment in regard to its mendacious course.

Symptoms of Reform.—The Atlas, in pretending to describe the Democratic Meeting at Faneuil Hall on Saturday evening, groans fifteen times in uttering twice as many falsehoods—we are glad to perceive this evidence of remorse at its iniquity—heretofore it has lied without any indication of pain.

The Directors of the Norwich and Worcester Rail Road have fixed upon the 18th instant as the day on which they will commence operations on their road.—They consider the occasion as one of no ordinary interest to the citizens of Massachusetts and Connecticut, and intend it shall be marked by appropriate ceremonies.

The Journal of Commerce states that it is not true that a draft has been offered and protested for any portion of the 25,000,000 of francs, due us from France—nor has the French Government as yet intimated its satisfaction, or its dissatisfaction, with the "explanation" tendered by the President.

The Boston Book: Boston, Light and Horton—contains upwards of three hundred pages of original poetry and essays, and choice selections from the best literary productions of the day. It is a valuable publication for the general reader, and is well calculated for a Christmas and New Year's present.

There is an officiating clergyman in the vicinity of Newport (N.H.) who has been twice in the States Prison for crime.

The Poetical Works of Mrs Hemans, with a Critical Notice. Philadelphia: Thomas J. Ash, (complete) in one Vol. 8vo, pp. 361.

The preface by Mr B. B. Thatcher is neat and appropriate, worthy of himself and his subject. The Book is beautifully printed, and a vast deal of matter crowded into a comparatively small space. It is too late now to praise Mrs Hemans; for her praise has been spoken wherever the English language is spoken; and what praise of ours could equal her merit? In the peculiar orbit of her genius she was without an equal. The heart was the great source of her inspiration, and nothing that interested humanity was foreign to it. Her genius consecrated every thing it touched—shedding light wherever it soared, and wherever it stopped leaving its foot-prints; Home was the favorite shrine of its worship; and, with the domestic fire-side for its altar, the best affections of the human heart were its offerings.

As a parent, she rose even superior to the poetess; as a mother, (the most perfect of human characters, when they are what mothers should be) she was a model for all mothers, not less in her life, than her writings;—and no mother's library should be without them, nor any other library.

The first annual Report of the association of Delegates from the Benevolent Societies of Boston; read and accepted Oct. 31, 1835; to which is added the Constitution of the association. Boston: I. R. Butts, pp. 48.

We hope every one will take the trouble to read this report. Errors on the subject of charity and pauperism are here exposed, and much information relating to the subject may be gleaned.

Extraordinary Theatrical Success.—Mademoiselle Celeste, the distinguished artiste, now performing at the Chesnut street theatre, Philadelphia, has completely eclipsed the Kembles, Burkes, Keans, &c., having received for her services in eleven nights, the extraordinary sum of forty-six thousand dollars!—N. Y. Sun.

There must be some mistake in this statement, as the amount said to have been received, is more than twice as much as the whole of the receipts of the theatre could have been.

We acknowledge the receipt, as a present, of a box of apples, from the garden of Mr. Caleb Stark, Danvers. Curiosity led us to measure one, and we found it to exceed thirteen inches in circumference. We can present us with a larger one!—Bangor Farmer.

We have got a turnip that measures 28 inches in circumference—if you will pay the postage, we'll send it to you by mail.

Seizure of a Slave.—A slave schooner called the Evening Edition, formerly a news boat belonging to the New York Journal of Commerce office, has been seized at Barbary, by order of the Portuguese Consul, and is now detained in that port. The crew and soldiers all managed to make their escape.

A plan is on foot for erecting one or more bridges between the cities of Brooklyn and New York—and the Mayor of the former city has been directed to make the necessary enquiries as to plans and models.

The New Amphitheatre.—There have been great exertions made by a few influential citizens to produce an excitement against the erection of an Amphitheatre on the site of the old Lion Inn, in Washington street, and this excitement has been made by urging the immoral tendency of such establishments. But the fact is, if it had been proposed to erect this building anywhere but in the vicinity of the complainants, the public would have heard nought of the matter.

From some circumstances which have transpired, it is to be feared that, notwithstanding the evident injustice which will be done to the gentlemen, who have purchased the estate on the faith of a compact made with the city authorities, that this will be of no avail against the influence of a few men, armed with the omnipotence of wealth, and consequently of influence.—Look at the facts. Some respectable gentlemen, wishing to erect a building for equestrian purposes, have bought, for $35,000, a large estate. They have petitioned in due form the proper authorities, who, having investigated the nature of the request, have thought proper to grant it, after having drawn up the articles giving the license with the utmost caution and judgment. Proceeding on such stable grounds, the purchase has been completed, and the building commenced.

But an alarm has been sounded by those interested in the adjoining estates. A meeting has been held, resolutions insulting to the proceedings of the Mayor and Aldermen passed, and a petition signed by those thus interested, and by a few others who are ultraists in every thing which offers rational amusement to the public. These petitioners would not appear before a special committee of the Board, but forsooth! must be heard by the whole, and by their Counsel. Under these circumstances it is to be feared that their might will subvert the right. This fear is predicated from a similar result in the case of the application of a half dozen individuals of the above class which put a stop to the opening of a foot path through the Burial Ground on the Common, although their application was resisted by the counter-memorial of 500 signers, which passed unnoticed; and although the path had been made and the wall taken down, the preponderance of the few against the many was soon shown, by immediately re-instating things as they were, and the public convenience was sacrificed. Did the Board forget the avenues through the Copp's Hill cemetery? Let strict justice be done in these matters. Let not our Municipal Authorities succumb to the alarms of self-interest and of morbid alarmists—but their pledge being given let it be sustained, and the community will approve their conduct.

Matrimonial Advertising.—A week ago, we published an advertisement signed "Maria," who took that method to get a husband. We are informed that the lady has succeeded exactly to her wishes. She has formed an engagement with one of the gentlemen who replied, and will be married next week. We are permitted thus far to state the progress of the affair, and are advised in a neat billet that we shall have a positive invitation to the wedding. We are not informed yet who the parties are, but have a shrewd guess as to the residence of the fair one.—N. York Herald.

MUNICIPAL COURT.

(Principal Sentences and Offences for the November Term.)
The case of Cole for an atrocious assault on a little boy.—Ambrose W. Cole was indicted for "an assault on John F. Davis, a youth of tender age,—to wit, nine years of age." This assault was on the 20th of October last, and the original Report in the Post, of the primary examination of the case, created considerable excitement, particularly among seafaring people. This Report was so universally circulated that it is unnecessary to recapitulate the facts minutely at the present time, but believing, from numerous personal inquiries, that there still exists a deep interest to learn the final result of the case, we publish the proceedings in the Municipal Court yesterday forenoon.

Upon his arraignment, Cole declined contending with the Commonwealth, but his counsel proposed to prove certain facts calculated to influence Judge Thatcher to mitigate the sentence. In order, however, that His Honor might better understand the exact character and aggravation of the offence, Mr Parker called Constable Pierce to the stand to testify that he stripped the boy, and counted on his back, arms, thighs and legs, One Hundred and Fifty-one Marks, besides four places where the skin was broken. Mr Pierce testified from a memorandum made at the time and signed by another person. The alleged cause of this unexampled beating, was, that the boy had twice spilt some oil, which he was ordered to carry. Cole inflicted the punishment with a rattan on the bare back, having first locked his office door, and hung an apron up to the window for a screen. Cole's counsel was not altogether fortunate in eliciting facts from the witnesses which he summoned, favorable to his client. The boy's Grandmother testified that he was always a quiet and harmless child, and neither herself nor mother ever met with any difficulty in managing him. The Counsel then asked her if it had not been the boy's ill-fortune to be abused wherever he had lived? His Honor could not—nor could any one else—perceive what justification such "abuse" would be to Cole, if the fact were so, but the witness answered, that the boy had only been at one other place, from which he was removed "because they made an underling of, and neglected him." The Counsel next proposed to show that the report in the papers had stated "a falsehood—a falsehood," in saying that the boy was an orphan, whose father died at sea, to excite sympathy in his behalf; but so far from having lost his father, he would show that he never had a father. To the question on this point, the witness replied, that she never knew any body to come into the world without a father, and that the boy's father was mate of a vessel, and died on a voyage to the Havana. His Honor refused to permit a further examination of the grandmother upon this irrelevant point, and declared it to be manifest that the boy was an orphan, and that the law would be a father to him. The witness is the boy's paternal grandmother. Another point suggested by the learned counsel was, that the number of marks on the boy's back was much greater than the number of blows struck, because the cross cuts would be multiplied by those which they intersected. This was a very happy idea, and could only have occurred to one well-grounded in the good old "Multiplication Table," which teaches us that 12 lines, crossing each other at right angles, make 144 squares. This argument was geometrically demonstrative; and as mathematics don't lie, the County Attorney was compelled to concede the principle as to such parts of the boy's body where it applied. The learned counsel was of opinion that those people who overlooked the geometry of the thing, and thereby "swelled the aggravation of the beating, were worse than Cole himself."

All we can say, upon this scientific aspect of the matter is, that the testimony was full and clear "that there were one hundred and fifty-one distinct marks and bruises," and we believe that neither the witness nor the reporters feel themselves to be much "worse than Mr Cole himself," in so stating? The Counsel then stated that Cole was and had been willing to make good to the boy any injury he might have suffered; Mr Parker denied this, and offered to call up a witness, who held a power of attorney to settle with Cole, but had failed in the negotiation. His Honor thought it was unnecessary to do so—it was enough for him, that Cole had not settled it. Witnesses were called, who gave Cole a good character—particularly for harmlessness and amiability. It was also proved, that when a boy fell out of a window, and injured his head—and more recently was robbed and wounded on the Common, and that by these mishaps, his brain was injured, and he was easily irritated to an extraordinary degree by the least opposition or contradiction—so much so as to have created an impression with those who have had business transactions with him, that he was insane; and the Counsel finally relied upon the argument, "that Cole was not a moral agent when a little irritated," in mitigation of the sentence. The Judge did not appear to attach much weight to the suggestion of Cole's insanity—and none to the others—and sentenced him to six months in the Common Jail. He has claimed an appeal. He dreaded this sentence much, and upon its announcement, fell back almost lifeless on his seat.

The terms of settlement offered to Cole, were the payment of $100, payable quarterly. He at first unreservedly admitted that this proposition was moderate and forbearing, and entirely within his ability to meet but a day or two afterwards he fell back, having in the meantime taken advice of counsel, that if he settled it, it would be construed into a confession of guilt. This unsound advice he unfortunately followed, and the severe sentence inflicted on him was the consequence—unforeseen by him, but well known by others.

George C. Wyman (alias Seth S. Greene) belonging to Cumberland, Maine, and a physician by profession, was convicted of breaking open trunks, and stealing two watches from two boarders, at Kilburn's Coffee House. Two other indictments pending against him.—Three years in the State Prison.

John Franklin Myers was acquitted upon the ground of insanity, of assaulting the Rev. Hosea Ballou in the street. He was ordered to be removed to the Lunatic Asylum at Worcester.

Thomas Brady and Thomas Fawcette—the Chelsea Highwaymen—pleaded guilty to three assaults on Messrs. Smith, Wright and Locke, and were sent to the House of Correction for Nine Months. Upon the principle, that the spoils of victory belong to the conqueror, Fawcette's potential sword-cane was awarded to Mr Locke.

A gentleman from New Brunswick N. J. has just informed us of a riot which occurred in that town on Monday night. A black man and a white woman were detected during the evening by some young blades, walking together in the street. The youngsters watched their movements, and saw them go into a house occupied by blacks. In about an hour a large mob assembled round the house, took the black fellow out and gave him a tremendous flogging on the spot; they then seized his white companion, for whom a more refined punishment was in waiting. She was stripped, covered with a coat of molasses and rags, and led to the river, whence, after performing sundry ablutions, she was permitted to depart followed by a crowd, who hooted at her until she was fortunate enough to secrete herself from their sight.—New York Sun.

A new way of keeping warm, during the long cold nights of a down east winter, has been put in practice with good effect at Bangor. It is to have a back-wheat cake made large enough to cover the bed like a quilt, and spread it over "piping hot," at the time of retiring. When made of sufficient thickness, it retains its heat till morning—and then, if a person is too lazy to get up, he can make a very good breakfast by eating off the edges as he lies.—Jb.

The Democrats did nobly yesterday—notwithstanding the obstacles thrown in their way by the Loco Focos, by attempts to produce disorganization at the last moment; the Democratic vote is larger this year than it was last, while the Whig vote has fallen off about fifteen hundred.

The election of the Whig candidate for Governor is very uncertain—it was believed when our paper went to press last evening that no choice had been effected by the people. The election of Senators and Representatives for Suffolk and Boston is also uncertain—it is thought, however, that Mr ALEXANDER H. EVERETT is chosen Senator, in the place of Mr Gray, and that five of the Whig candidates have also been elected. We are inclined to the belief that the Whig ticket for Representatives has been successful. The Atlas hung out a flag for a little while last evening, and some mistook it for a token of triumph, but it proved to be a sign of distress.

The Loco Focos, the Out and Outers, the Reformer Men, skulked behind every ticket they could get hold of—they printed their list of candidates for the Legislature under all sorts of names for Governor—Everett, Armstrong, Morton, Bancroft, &c. &c. They relied principally upon the Abolitionists for aid, and the only ticket published in the Reformer on the morning of election, was headed with the name of WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON for Representative. If we are enabled by any means to sift out their real strength, we will publish the number of their votes—it was probably about three hundred. The assertion that we struck Mr James's name from the Senatorial List supported by the Democratic Party, is utterly false—we had it in our power to prevent Mr James's nomination by the Ward and County Committees, by marking against him, as he was nominated by only one majority, but did not do it—when Hall J. How's name was stricken from the list by the Loco Focos, and the nomination made by the Committee broken up, we advised the retaining of Mr James's name upon the new list. So much for this charge against us in the Reformer—its other accusations contain just about as much truth as that relative to Mr James's nomination.

WESTERN RAIL ROAD.

Mr Editor.—It has been intimated through one of our journals, and not as yet contradicted, that our rich men are unwilling to subscribe to the stock for the great Western Railway. I know full well that the great body of the people have indulged the hope, that our wealthy men would, upon this occasion at least, come forward freely and liberally. I know equally well that they have been disappointed; that the writer of these lines has been disappointed, he will not pretend; he has watched too long, and too narrowly, the course which the rich men of this city have adopted upon previous occasions, to be astonished upon this—they have but followed out the doctrine of their great champion, that laws should be made for the protection of the rich, that the rich might afterwards take care of the poor—but (and I hope the rich will read this,) has it never struck the rich that they may place too great reliance upon the protection of the law. Let us examine the condition of the rich men in this city, who claim as a matter of right, the protection of the law.—In the first place, they are most of them men of large capital, who have retired from business, and invested their capital in real estate and stocks, always commanding a money capital to take advantage of the stock market. With regard to their Real Estate, they have managed it that they seldom loose, or are exposed to loss—for while the trader, and merchant, must take his dividend in case of failure, the landlord gets the whole amount of his rent, as a matter of right. With regard to stocks, suppose a project like the present Western Railway to be in agitation, you go to the rich man, he declines subscribing not because he has any doubt of the feasibility of the plan, not because it will not enhance the value of his real estate and stocks,—but because experience tells him, that if he holds back, he will hereafter get the stock cheaper; and how will he get it, why plainly thus—there are always a number of active, enterprising, energetic men in a city like this, who seeing the general good to be derived from a great railway, and being compelled to it from the backwardness of the rich, subscribe more freely than their other engagements will warrant; what ensues, instalments become due, the stock is thrown into the market—the rich man steps forward like a bloated spider waiting for its victim—and this way becomes the holder of stock at less than its value.

On this occasion I say nothing of the rich man's broker, who in times of scarcity goes about like the vampire. But I address myself earnestly and solemnly to the rich man in the voice of warning as well as reproach. I tell him that which he ought to feel to be true, that is country after all, law is but the exponent of the popular opinion—in some cases popular opinion forestalls the law—that it does rightly so I do not admit. But how careful ought that portion of the community, who have nothing but the strength (I might almost say the feebleness,) of the law to look to be against giving offence; with no virtues for a barrier, no good actions for a bulwark, let them be cautious how they wake into life, the whirlwind which will destroy them.

JUNIAS.

Carey's Library.—The first three numbers of "Carey's Library of Choice Literature," noticed some time since by us as forthcoming, have been published, and we can confidently say that the promises of the prospectus are more than fulfilled. The Library is designed as a re-print of the most popular foreign Literature, and commences with the Life of Sir James Mackintosh, by his son Robert Mackintosh, which is justly considered one of the most pleasing and instructive biographical works that has appeared for several years. If the succeeding numbers evince the same good taste, the enterprise must be successful. Each number contains twenty imperial pages, double columns, making two volumes annually of more than five hundred pages each. The whole amount of matter furnished in a year, will be more than is contained in forty volumes of the common sized English duodecimo books. Its cover is a species of magazine, consisting of sketches of men and things, and notices of novelties in literature and the arts. The subscription price is but five dollars a year. The form is altogether preferable to that of Waldie's Library; and we recommend the patrons of that periodical to examine and decide for themselves whether its contents are not to be preferred.—Broaders is the agent.—Traveller.

Emigrants.—A train of four wagons, each drawn by six horses, well loaded with household goods, women and children, and followed by 30 or 40 men, lately passed through Wheeling (Va.) They were from Hanover, in Germany.

Highway Robbery.—On Monday evening, a young man belonging in Massachusetts, named Metapher Chase, deaf and dumb, who had just returned from Troy, where he had been to visit a brother, was attacked by a large black fellow named William Lisbon, one of the Five Point fraternity, who forcibly stripped the unfortunate lad of his coat, hat and shoes, robbed his pocket of a wallet containing $7.50, and then absconded. Chase fortunately soon after met a watchman, and making known his loss to him by signs, conducted him in the direction he noticed his robber to have taken.—He had not proceeded far before they came upon a collection of negroes, amongst whom was Lisbon; and no sooner did the deaf and dumb find out that he had sprang upon and seized him, and he was lodged in the watch-house. In the morning, Chase, through the agency of one similarly afflicted, but who had been well instructed at the asylum for the deaf and dumb, made the requisite deposition as to the robbery, and Lisbon was fully committed for trial.—N. Y. Sun.

An Old and Honorable Bell.—The Bell now hanging in the steeple of the old State House, in Philadelphia, is the same one that gave the call for assembling the people together, fifty-nine years ago, to the hearing of the first reading of the Declaration of Independence. It is now only rung on special and extraordinary occasions. It was cast from the metal of an imported bell in 1752, which was injured in ringing. It has, in connection with its history, a very remarkable inscription upon it, copied from the 28th chap. of the Book of Leviticus, 10th verse.—"Proclaim Liberty throughout the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof;" and literally obeyed the prophetic command on the 4th of July, 1776. On this account it was deemed prudent to remove it from Philadelphia, in 1777, when the British were about to visit Philadelphia.

Music hath Charms.—Senesino and Farinelli, when in England together, being engaged at different theatres on the same night, had not an opportunity of hearing each other till, by one of those stage revolutions which frequently happen, yet are always unexpected, they were both engaged to sing on the same stage. Senesino had the part of a tyrant to represent, and Farinelli that of an unfortunate hero in chains; but, in the course of the first song, the latter so softened the heart of the enraged tyrant, that Senesino, forgetting his assumed character, ran to Farinelli and embraced him.

they devote Tuesday and Friday evenings, of each week, to their Quadrille and Waltzing classes—commencing at half past 7 o'clock. For further particulars, apply at the Hall.

DANCING.
MR FROST would give notice to the young ladies and gentlemen of this city, that his School will be open on Tuesday, the 10th of November, at the Hall No 8 Winter street. Those wishing to become acquainted with that accomplishment will please to make early application at No 22 Pitts street, or at the Hall on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, or on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

MORSE'S PNEUMATORIUM, or Self Moving Engine.
The subscriber respectfully informs the public that he will exhibit the above Engine, for a short time, at Cornhill Hall, corner of Court and Hanover streets, commencing THIS DAY, Oct. 26th.
This Engine is moved by the contraction and expansion of condensed atmospheric air, and when once put in motion, will continue to move, supplying itself with power, so long as the machinery remains in good order.

The principle of this Engine, and application of which the subscriber has obtained letters patent, is perfectly plain, and easily understood. There is no pretence of any mystery about it. The subscriber solicits the most thorough examination of the curious and scientific, and confidently believes that all will agree that it is one of the most useful and practical inventions, applicable, in many ways hitherto unknown, to many purposes of science and the mechanic arts.
The Engine will be exhibited every week day, from 8 in the morning till 10 in the evening. Admission 25 cents.—Se-son tickets 30 cents. ANDREW MORSE, Jr.

SPLENDID EXHIBITION OF ITALIAN PAINTINGS, AT AMORY HALL.
ON THURSDAY, the 10th inst., at Amory Hall, corner of West and Washington streets, a most splendid exhibition of Paintings will be opened for a short time to the public, previous to being sold at auction.
This collection is composed of the best copies of the finest Pictures in the galleries of Rome and Florence, together with several choice originals, of Spadocchini, Lucatelli, Bapiani, Pannini, &c.—the whole sent out to a gentleman of this city by Chateaufort, (so well known to those who have been in Rome as one of the best copyists,) and according to the lovers of Painting a most rare and desirable opportunity for enriching their collections with the choicest specimens of the art, and fully equal to any of the few already brought to this country by those who have travelled in Europe.
The Exhibition will remain open for a fortnight previous to the sale, of which due notice will be given.

WRIGHT'S DIORAMA. corner of Tremont and

REVISED STATUTES.
Pursuant to a Resolve of the Legislature, passed Nov. 3d, 1853, the subscribers will receive proposals for printing and publishing the Revised Statutes of the Commonwealth, together with the Constitutions of the Commonwealth and of the United States. It is estimated that the Statutes will make 800 pages of the size and form of the Reports of the Commonwealth on the Revised Statutes, with full and complete notes; the head tables and the Constitutions about 40 pages, and an Index about 100 pages, in all about 940 pages. And a right is reserved to insert any other matter which may be directed at the rate proposed.
The whole is to be included in one volume, printed on sized paper, similar to that of said Reports, the Constitutions and Statutes to be of similar type and style. The head tables and marginal notes, index, and repealing Statute or Schedule, if any, to be of type similar to said head tables in said Reports; and the whole printing and paper to be in a style not inferior to said Reports. The binding to be in a style not inferior to said Reports of the Supreme Court. 1500 copies are to be reproduced to the Commonwealth, and the work is also to be kept for sale in some convenient place in Boston, for five years from the publication, and sold to any person at the price paid by the Commonwealth; the publication to be superintended by two committees, to be appointed by the members, and to be done as soon as may be practicable. And the contractor must give bond with securities, for the fulfillment of his contract.
The proposals will state the price per copy, and the rate of variation in price, in case the number of pages may be more or less than estimated, and will be sent sealed to the office of the Secretary of State, on or before the 10th inst., addressed to the undersigned. Liberty is reserved to the Commissioners to exclude the heading tables, if they judge best.

GEORGE BLISS,
JULIUS ROCKWELL.

DAVIS'S CHEMICAL VEGETABLE Liquid Oil Soap.
THIS article, by a proper application, removes grease spots and all other substances, from Cloths, Carpets, Woollen Garments and Linen Garments of every description, without injury in the least to the color or texture of the goods. It restores them to their original lustre, and may be used with perfect safety, even on the finest fabrics. It is particularly recommended for cleaning Costly Cloths, so apt to become soiled by the hair. It is also extremely useful in all cases of Sprains, Bruises, Corns and Rheumatism. It is likewise a remedy for Scalds or Burns of any description, relieving the pain and effecting a cure more readily than any article hitherto used for the purpose. Ample directions for its application, in all cases, will be found on each bottle.

There is much convenience and economy in its use, that no person, having once tried it and ascertained its virtues, would ever afterwards be without it.
The above article for sale by W. M. C. STIMPSON & CO.,
No 3, South State Faneuil Hall.

MESSEURS RAPP & BADGER have just arrived (on a short visit) in Boston, from New York, a number of their services to the Ladies and Gentlemen of this city and its vicinity, in the line of their profession. Six lessons of one hour each, will secure those accomplishments which no Lady or Gentle man should be without.

The following highly respectable testimonials are respectfully submitted.
From Rev Dr Lowell, of this city.—I am satisfied from the testimonial, which I have read of Mr Rapp's qualifications as a teacher of Penmanship, that they are of a high order, and that I need have no hesitation in recommending him to those who may wish for instruction in this important branch of education.
Boston, Sept. 17, 1853.
From Rev Dr Wadsworth.—Mr Rapp has exhibited to me his testimonial, which are numerous and very satisfactory. He has also explained to me a few of the leading principles of his system. Upon this evidence, I doubt not of his being worthy of patronage.
Boston, Sept. 17, 1853.
From Rev Mr Lothrop.—Mr Rapp brings with him the most satisfactory testimonials, as to his character and qualifications as a teacher of Penmanship. He has explained to me the leading principles of his system, which appear to me as important and practical as it is simple, and I cheerfully recommend him to all who may need his instruction.
Boston, Sept. 17, 1853.
I concur in the sentiments expressed above by the Rev Mr Lothrop.

GENUINE LIFE PRESERVERS.
From the Baltimore Patriot.

THE following paragraph, setting forth the value and im-portance of these Life Preservers, is from the late number of the New York Commercial Advertiser. The expense of pre-curing a full supply of the article for every steamboat, would be comparatively inconsiderable, and ought not to enter into the calculation, when taking measures for adding to the safety of passengers, and for the preservation of human life. We learn that any number of these "Life Preservers" may be ob-tained at short notice of Messrs F. Hutchings & Co, in this city.

LIFE PRESERVERS.—As it is impossible for steamers to carry small boats enough to secure the lives of their passengers in case of disaster, they ought to be furnished with a sufficient quantity of the Life Preservers. The expense of procuring a full supply of the article for every steamboat, would be comparatively inconsiderable, and ought not to enter into the calculation, when taking measures for adding to the safety of passengers, and for the preservation of human life.
